#104

A Mirror Never Lies □

Self-evaluation is the true beginning of self-growth.

Many people want to move forward in life, but they make one key mistake — they try to change the world around them without being ready to look within.

If you take a little time every day to ask yourself:

“What did I do well today?”

“Where did I make mistakes?”

“How can I become better?”

You’ll slowly start becoming a better version of yourself.

Remember One Thing..

□ A mirror never lies.

In the same way, honest self-evaluation never lies.

When you accept your flaws, only then can you find ways to improve them.

“The person who conquers themselves can conquer the world.”

Start today…

Don’t try to change others — change yourself first.